CONSIDERING TRAVEL & PASSPORT/VISA COSTS

Updated: 25 JULY 2017

PASSPORT FEES | est. cost: $135.00 to $195.00

If you are planning to study abroad, you will need passport that is valid for at least 6 months after your expected date of return to the U.S. For a new, first-time U.S. Passport, expect to pay $135.00 (passport renewals are $110.00). Routine processing time is 6 to 8 weeks. If you have waited too close to your departure date and have to have your passport application rushed, expect to pay at least $60.00 more for an "expedite fee." If you are not a U.S. citizen or if you hold dual citizenship, your passport requirements will depend on your country of citizenship.

VISA FEES | costs vary; may require travel to an embassy or consulate in another city

Many countries require U.S. citizens to obtain a visa in order to study abroad in that country. The best resource for information on the visa requirements for your specific country of study is the country's embassy or consulate website.

Each country and even different embassies and consulates of the same country may require different documentation for a student visa. The most typical requirements include a completed visa application form, a passport-style photo, proof of funds to support the student while abroad, and a letter from host institution giving proof of enrollment. An FBI background check and health screenings are also common requirements and you may be required to travel to the embassy or consulate to apply for your visa in person. If you are not a U.S. citizen or if you hold dual citizenship, your visa requirements will depend on your country of citizenship.

AIRFARE | costs vary

In order to give student participants maximum flexibility in travel planning and to allow them to take advantage of personal travel benefits such as frequent flyer miles, the Ole Miss Study Abroad Office does not coordinate or arrange flights for students. We recommend that you do thorough research to find airline tickets that work best for your needs and your budget.

Your program provider or host institution abroad will provide you with the arrival and departure dates for your program. If you are travelling to a country that requires a visa, it is strongly recommended that you do not purchase your airline ticket until after you have received your visa.

We recommend that you carefully explore and compare flight itineraries and prices from multiple travel resources including: discount internet search engines, student travel agencies, and the airlines themselves.

Estimated round-trip airfare prices by region:

• Asia: $1300 • Central America or the Caribbean: $800

• Europe: $1200 • Middle East or North Africa: $1300 • Pacific Islands or South Africa: $1900

• South America: $1200

CONSIDERING ADDITIONAL LODGING & MEALS COSTS

ADDITIONAL LODGING | costs vary

Most study abroad programs already include housing in their program costs. However, you will need to be sure that housing is included in your particular program.

Additionally, many students choose to arrive in their country of study before the official start date and/or to stay beyond the program end date. In those cases, you will want to budget for the lodging associated with those extra days and nights. Also, if you plan to take overnight personal/independent trips during your program, you'll want to remember to budget for those costs as well.

Student travelers on a tight budget might want to look into hotel alternatives for extended stays and personal/independent travel. Hotel alternatives are not for everyone and you should do extensive research before booking. Some hotel alternatives to consider include:

- Short-Term Room Rentals (airbnb.com, homestay.com)
- Hostels
- Religious Housing (monasterystays.com)

MEALS | costs vary

Be sure that you understand the meal arrangement for your particular program. Even if meals are included in your program costs, there are likely to be times when you will want or need to eat out. You will want to consider your own personal eating habits, too.

Online research can give you a good idea about average food costs in your particular city of study abroad. Consider how many meals per week you might expect to eat out and budget accordingly. Don't forget to consider weekends, too!

CONSIDERING BOOKS/CLASS MATERIALS, LOCAL TRANSPORTATION & OTHER/PERSONAL COSTS

BOOKS/CLASS MATERIALS | costs vary

In general, college text book costs abroad are typically less expensive than they are in the U.S. because professors in other countries tend to make more frequent use of course reading packets, independent reading lists, and/or electronic self-publishing, all of which tend to decrease the costs of purchasing or renting text books.

The best resource for researching potential book and course material costs will be either your program provider or the incoming international student office at your host institution abroad. Don't be afraid to reach out to these contacts with this or other questions about your program and expectations.

LOCAL TRANSPORTATION | costs vary

Consider how you plan to get around your host city while abroad. Research average costs for local transportation, such as trains, buses, and taxis.

OTHER/PERSONAL EXPENSES | costs vary

Since each country, region and city around the world is different, you should do lots of research online about the weekly costs that you can expect in your specific location. Also, factor in your own personality and expectations.

Some things to consider: Costs for going out and entertainment, travel to other cities or countries during your program, personal toiletries and other personal needs, options for mobile phone service while abroad.
